BREAST CANCER MANAGEMENT 2010

Friday, November 6, 2009

The Faculty Club, New York City

Program Director: Sheldon Marc Feldman, MD, FACS

BREAST CANCER MANAGEMENT 2010

This program will review the current state of the art in breast cancer management, highlighting the key components of multidisciplinary treatment to include surgery, medical oncology, radiation, radiology, pathology, plastics, genetics and psychosocial issues. Emphasis will be given to emerging technologies which improve our ability to provide highly personalized breast cancer management through improved understanding of tumor biology and genetics. Active areas of most promising research will be discussed. The format of this program will consist of lectures and case studies. Expert faculty will serve on a breast cancer tumor board at the end of each session to interactively discuss the multidisciplinary perspective on the evaluation and treatment of patients at increased risk for developing breast cancer and those who are diagnosed with early and advanced stage breast cancer. Therapeutic interventions with areas of current clinical controversy will be highlighted.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This program has been designed for primary care physicians, obstetricians, gynecologists, internists, medical oncologists, radiation oncologists, gynecological oncologists, surgical oncologists, radiologists, pathologists, nurses, and any other clinicians involved in the management and treatment of patients with breast cancer.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Understand the importance of the identification of individuals at increased risk for developing breast cancer.
- Understand optimal multidisciplinary approach to allow patients to achieve successful breast conservation.
- Understand the rationale, role and process of genetic counseling and genetic testing for BRCA gene mutations.
- Learn optimal breast surveillance screening including mammography, MRI and ultrasound.

- Learn about diagnostic work-up of breast abnormalities including image-guided breast biopsies, surgical approaches and pathological evaluation.
- Understand oncoplastic surgical approaches to allow for successful cancer control while maintaining normal breast appearance including nipple sparing mastectomy.
- Learn recommendations for adjuvant systemic chemotherapy and hormonal therapy.
- Understand the role of individual tumor assessment using genetic analysis to allow for personalized approach to systemic therapy recommendations.
- Learn radiation therapy approaches for breast conservation and post-mastectomy including the role for partial breast irradiation.
- Understand current options for breast reconstruction.
- Understand current and emerging medical oncology strategies for treating patients with metastatic breast cancer.
- Learn about the importance of psychological and emotional support in newly diagnosed breast cancer patients and in patients who experience a breast cancer recurrence.

ACCREDITATION / DESIGNATION OF CREDIT

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons designates this educational activity for a maximum of 4.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits[™]. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

The American College of Nurse Practitioners (ACNP) and The American Academy of Physician Assistants (AAPA) accept AMA/PRA category 1 credit from organizations accredited by the ACCME.

The American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC) accepts AMA/PRA category 1 credit toward recertification requirements.

We expect support for this program through grants from pharmaceutical and medical device companies.
